career development

Adelaide April 7-9, 2010

We realise that career development practitioners are increasingly challenged with the ethics and issues of sustainable careers, and need strategies for preparing people to work in a range of emerging green occupations.

National and international presenters will provide you with current information and perspectives to help you develop solutions and enrich your practice.

Write these dates in your diary now and consider coming one day early to participate in our innovative tours and site visits on April 6th.

Information will be updated through our website www.cdaa.org.au and e-zine postings.
