Senator Mark Arbib, the Minister for Employment Participation, has launched the new Keep Australia Working website and helpline.

"Keep Australia Working is a major part of the Government's strategy to support jobs and small business during these tough economic times," the Minister said.

"As a job seeker and an employer, I urge you to use this website to access information about job providers, training organisations and also the stimulus package.

"I encourage you to use the Keep Australia Working website, there is something there for everyone.

"If you need any help when you are navigating the site, follow the links or you can contact us at the Call Centre," said the Minister.

Many of the career practitioners that are staffin the help line are Professional Members of the CDAA.
